 The very valuable law library now offered by the administrators of the late Thomas A. Jenckes, was the accumulation of many years of a very extensive and successful practice in the higher courts of this country. A glance, will at once discover its completeness in the earlier and scarcer English Reports, the Reports of the United States Supreme Court, and the most authoritative of the Reports of the separate States. The library is very full on the subject of Patents, in which department Mr. Jenckes had a very large practice. The treatises on Bankruptcy, a subject to which Mr. Jenckes had given the most mature consideration, is largely represented; and in fact, there is scarcely a department of the law in which this library is deficient in presenting the best Treatises and Decisions.

These cases, though determined by an English Court, are by no means foreign to American jurisprudence, and the aim of the American editor has been to adapt them more completely to American use, and thereby to relieve the labor of the American student and practitioner, who, with reasonable facilities for examination, will find in them a wealth of wisdom and learning not easily attainable from any other source.

330 Jenkins, David. Berum Judicatarum centuriae Octo.—Eight centuries of Reports or Eight hundred cases, adjudged in the Exchequer chamber from 4 Henry III., to 21 James I. Folio. London, 1661

This is a first edition.

"The learned, the loyal, and the excellent Judge Jenkins, who was imprisoned during the revolution, for his adherence to the King, give the following account of the plan of his work, and the place where it was composed."

"I have also compiled a book of Reports, in several divisions, after the example of those famous men, Fitz-Herbert and Lord Brooke, and have brought them down to our own times, and have made observations upon all the year books of our laws, and upon the rules of laws so that the studious reader, by their assistance, may safely steer through the straights of the law without any danger of striking upon the rocks of error. Amidst the sounds of drums and trumpets, surrounded by an odious multitude of barbarians, broken with old age and confinement in prisons, where my fellow subjects, grown wild with rage, detained me for fifteen years together, I bestowed many watchful hours upon this performance," It partakes of the character of a digest, a commentary, and a volume of Reports."

"The Institutions of Lord Stair are of the highest authority in Scotland, and are frequently cited by elementary legal writers of other countries and in the Courts of both England and the United States. The author was the first writer who reduced to system the Law of Scotland, and his work is so well digested in all its parts, so liberal in principle, so good in arrangement, so distinguished for sound judgment and excellent adaptation to the business and concerns of men, that it would seem almost beyond the age in which it was written, were it not in truth a digest of the judgments of the Court of Session reduced to order, accor- to the spirit and arrangement of the Roman Jurisprudence."

622 Viner, Charles. A general abridgment of Law and Equity, alphabetically digested under proper titles with Notes and References to the whole. 23vols Folio. Aldershot 1742-53

"This laborius author spent nearly fifty years upon his abridgment the most voluminous production of any single individual in the whole bibliography of the Common Law. Whatever is to be found in the old abridgments, or in all printed and several Mss. Reports anterior to George III. Mr. Viner has translated, abridged, remodeled, and introduced or referred to in his work." "Mr. Justice Story says: Its principal merit is its extent; and though in some points it is redundant, in others defective, and in all irregular, it is a vast index of the Law, which time and patience can master, when all other resources have failed."

"The volume devoted to Evidence was separately published, of which Professor Whiteside remarks: "When a question of Evidence, of any novelty or difficulty arises, fail not to search the 12th volume of Viner's Abridgment."
